The image above shows a large square subdivided into nine big squares. One of the big squares is further subdivided into four medium squares and one of these, in turn, is subdivided into twenty-five small squares. Compared to the area of the large square, what fraction is represented by the small colored square? Make sure you explain how you got your answer.